

	Chapter	Pag-i	Pag-f	Pags
	Textiles			83
	General-Formal	113	161	48
§ 4	Why Textiles Are Treated First	113	113	0
§ 5	Basic Objectives of This Technique	113	113	0
§ 6	The String	113	116	3
	The Band	116	123	7
§ 7	Fixed Band Decorations	116	118	2
§ 8	Fluttering Band Decorations	118	123	5
§ 9	The Cover	123	146	23
§ 10	Top and Bottom; Right and Left	124	124	0
§ 11	General- Formal	124	127	3
§ 12	On Surface Figuration	127	130	3
§ 13	Floor Dressings	130	134	4
§ 14	The Coloring of Floors	134	135	1
§ 15	Different Methods of Combining Colors	135	138	3
§ 16	Direction of Ornamental Motifs	138	146	8
	The Cover as a Horizontal Spatial Termination Above	146	153	7
§ 17	The Relation of Ceiling to Floor and Walls	146	147	1
§ 18	Direction of Themes Represented on Ceilings	147	153	6
	The Seam			0
§ 19	The Structural Significance of the Seam	153	157	4
§ 20	The Seam as Artistic Symbol	157	159	2
§ 21	Contrasting Direction of Seam and Band	159	160	1
§ 22	The Hem: A Mean between Seam and Band	160	161	1
	Textiles
	B. Technical- Historical	167	429	262
§ 23	Introduction	167	169	3
§ 24	Plan of This Chapter	169	170	1
	A. ON RAW MATERIALS	170	218	48
	1. General	170	171	1
§ 25	The Product Should Be Visibly Consistent with the Material
	2. Simple Natural Products Used in a Completely Natural State or after Being Treated with a Technical Process That Does Not Fundamentally Change the Structural and Formal Properties of the Material	171	185	14
§ 26	Our Own Skin: The Most Natural Cover	171	172	1
§ 27	Bindings on Utensils and Weapons	172	173	1
§ 28	Furriery: A Recently Neglected Technique	173	175	2
§ 29	Tree Bark	175	176	1
§ 30	Egyptian Embossed Leather and the Style of Egyptian Sculpture in General	176	177	1
§ 31	More on Leather and Furs	177	180	3
§ 32	Rubber: The Factotum of Industry	180	183	3
§ 33	Current Style in Rubber Production	183	185	2
§ 34	Rubber Used for Covering Houses	185	185	0
	Lacquering	185	200	15
§ 35	Chinese Lacquering Processes	185	188	3
§ 36	The Relationship of Chinese Techniques to Ancient Techniques; Indian Lacquers; Papier-Maché	188	189	1
§ 37	Fibers	189	191	2
§ 38	Flax Fibers and Their Special Attributes	191	193	2
§ 39	Principle of Style Derived from Preparation	193	194	1
§ 40	Cotton: Properties of the Material and Its Application	194	196	2
§ 41	Wool: Properties of This Fabric and Its Application	196	200	4
	Silk	200	218	18
§ 42	The Non-Greek Silk Style	200	204	4
§ 43	The Neo-Babylonian Silk Style	204	208	4
§ 44	Gold Brocade	208	211	3
§ 45	Satin	211	214	3
§ 46	Velvet	214	216	2
§ 47	Other Silk Fabrics	216	218	2
	B. STYLE AS CONDITIONED BY THE TREATMENT OF MATERIALS	218	237	19
§ 48	Preliminary Remarks	218	218	0
§ 49	The Earliest Products of Bands and Threads	218	219	1
§ 50	Spun Yarn	219	219	0
§ 51	Twisted Yarn	219	219	0
§ 52	The Knot	219	221	2
§ 53	The Loop Stitch	221	221	0
§ 54	Plaiting (Plait, Braid, Seam, Canework, Matting)	221	226	5
§ 55	Felt	226	226	0
§ 56	Weaving	226	228	2
§ 57	The Stitch, Embroidery, Acu Pingere, Pinsere, Pungere	228	232	4
§ 58	Dyeing, Printing and So On	232	237	5
	C. HOW STYLE IN THE DRESSING OF DIFFERENT PEOPLES BECAME SPECIALIZED AND TRANSFORMED OVER THE COURSE OF CULTURAL HISTORY			0
	a. Clothing	237	242	5
§ 59	Relation of Costume to Architecture	237	239	2
§ 60	Contrast of Greek Free Drapery with Barbarian Dress	239	242	3
	b. The Principle of Dressing Has Greatly Influenced Style in Architecture and in the Other Arts at All Times and among All Peoples	242	420	178
§ 61	General	242	247	5
§ 62	The Oldest Formal Principle in Architecture Independent of Construction and Based on the Concept of Space; the Masking of Reality in the Arts	247	250	3
§ 63	The Figurative Use of Materials for Monumental Purposes	250	254	4
§ 64	New Zealand and Polynesia	254	255	1
§ 65	China	255	264	9
	1. Spatial Enclosure			0
	2. The Tectonic Framework			0
§ 66	India	264	271	7
§ 67	Mesopotamia	271	277	6
§ 68	Excursus on Tapestry in Antiquity	277	303	26
§ 69	Continuation of 67 in Relation to Chaldea and Assyria	303	312	9
§ 70	Assyria	312	346	34
§ 71	Nebuchadrezzar's New Babylon	346	348	2
§ 72	The Median Empire: Ecbatana	348	349	1
§ 73	Susa; Persia	349	349	0
§ 74	Phoenicia and Judaea	349	354	5
§ 75	Egypt: Old and New Kingdoms	354	362	8
	Tombs of the Old Kingdom			0
§ 76	Column Orders	362	368	6
§ 77	Hellas; Asia Minor	368	376	8
§ 78	Greece Proper: General Observations	376	380	4
§ 79	The Old Hellenic Style	380	385	5
§ 80	Perfecting Style	385	394	9
§ 81	The Displacement of Wall Painting by Panel Painting	394	400	6
§ 82	The Romans: The Early Period	400	407	7
§ 83	The Romans as World Conquerors	407	413	6
§ 84	Rome in Decline	413	415	2
§ 85	Christian Era: Western Empire	415	419	4
§ 86	The East	419	419	0
§ 87	The Renaissance	419	420	1
				0
	Concluding Remarks	420	429	9
	Notes	429	465	36

	Chapter	Pag-i	Pag-f	Pags
	Ceramics			139
	Aesthetic-Formal	467	554	87
§ 88	Introduction	467	471	4
§ 90	Class I. The Container (Reservoir)	471	472	1
§ 92	1. The Amphora	472	474	2
§ 94	2. Urns	474	476	2
§ 95	3. Kraters, Originally mixing Vessels	476	480	4
§ 96	4. The Bowl (Phial, Patera, Tazza, Basin)	480	486	6
§ 97	5. The Tub; The Trough (Labrum)	486	488	2
§ 98	6. The Tubular Reservoir (Aryballos, Alabastrum, Sinus Pera, Perula, Ampulla, Capula)	488	489	1
§ 99	7. Reservoirs or Containers Also Include Receptacles for Dry Substances Whose Archetype is the Basket, a Vessel Woven from Wicker	489	491	2
§ 100	8. Other Forms of Receptacles	491	495	4
				28
§ 101	Class II. Scooping Vessels	495	502	7
§ 102	1. The Spoon	495	500	5
§ 102	2. The Funnel	500	502	2
				7
§ 103	Class III. Pouring Vessels	503	524	21
	1. Saucières	503	503	0
	2. Lamps	503	508	5
§ 104	3. The Pitcher (Prochus, Praefericulum)	508	512	4
§ 105	4. Pouring Vessel with Spout (Prochoos, Epichysis, Guttus, Buire)	512	514	2
§ 106	5. The Flask	514	517	3
§ 107	6. Drinking Vessels	517	524	7
				21
§ 108	The Integration of Vessel Parts and the Art-Forms Arising from them	524	525	1
§ 109	The Belly	525	534	9
	Form	525	529	4
	Decorative Attributes	529	534	5
§ 110	The Base (Support, Stand)	534	540	6
§ 111	The Neck	540	543	3
§ 112	The Mouth (Lip)	543	545	2
§ 113	The Handle	545	552	7
§ 114	The Lid	552	553	1
				29
§ 115	The Significance of Ceramics for Architecture	554	554	1
	Ceramics
	Technical-Historical	559	606	47
§ 116	Ceramic Materials and their Properties Determine the General Ceramic Style	559	563	4
§ 117	The Interrelation between the Sediments of the Earth's Crust and the History of Pottery	563	563	0
§ 118	The Oldest Pottery: Its Plastic Tendency	564	566	2
§ 119	The Upheaval in Pottery Caused by the Introduction of the Potter's Wheel	566	567	1
§ 120	Oligochrome Hellenic Ceramics	567	572	5
	a. Archaic style	567	569	2
	b. Hellenic style	569	572	3
§ 121	Polychrome Hellenic Ceramics	572	573	1
§ 122	Roman Ceramics	573	574	1
§ 123	Southern Italic Pottery	574	575	1
§ 124	The Middle Ages and Recent Times	575	577	2
	Soft-Glaze Lead Pottery (Brongniart's Poterie Tendre; Faïence)	575	577	2
§ 125	Majolica; Faïence	578	580	2
§ 126	Fine Faïence, Earthenware (Faïence Fine)	580	584	4
§ 127	Earthenware (Brongniart's Grès Cérame)	584	590	6
§ 128	Porcelain	590	595	5
§ 129	Glass	596	606	10

	Chapter	Pag-i	Pag-f	Pags
	Tectonics (Carpentry)			87
	General-Formal	623	646	23
§ 130	The Formal Language of Tectonics Was Fixed before Its Use in Monumental Architecture	623	624	1
§ 131	The Main Purposes of Tectonics	624	624	0
§ 132	The Frame with Its Corresponding Filling	624	626	2
§ 133	The Upright Framework	626	630	4
§ 134	Upright Rectangular Frames; Upright Enclosed by Curves and Mixed Regular Forms	630	633	3
§ 135	Horizontal Frames	633	633	0
§ 136	The Lattice	634	639	5
§ 137	The Support	639	646	7
§ 138	The Structure: Integrating the Supports with the Frame	646	646	23
	Tectonics
	Technical-Historical	651	710	59
§ 139	Materials	651	651	0
§ 140	Timber Plank Construction	651	658	7
§ 141	Metal Bar Construction (Iron)	658	659	1
§ 142	Hollow Lattice Construction (Wood and Metal)	659	660	1
§ 143	Stone Tectonics	660	660	0
§ 144	Greco-Italic Tectonics: Domestic Furnishing	660	665	5
§ 145	Greco-Italic Tectonics: Timber Architecture	665	666	1
§ 146	Tuscan-Roman Timber Architecture	666	668	2
§ 147	The Interior Structure	668	670	2
§ 148	Medieval Tectonics: Domestic Furnishing	671	673	2
§ 149	Medieval Tectonics: Timber Architecture	673	674	1
§ 150	The Scandinavian Manor	674	678	4
§ 151	The Scandinavian Timber Church	678	679	1
§ 152	Half-Timber Buildings of the Middle Ages	679	681	2
§ 153	West Germanic Half-Timber Building	681	684	3
§ 154	Half-Timber Building in Southeastern Germany	685	688	3
§ 155	Log Construction: The Swiss House	689	692	3
§ 156	The Medieval Timber Ceiling	692	696	4
§ 157	Medieval Paneling	696	698	2
§ 158	The Renaissance: General Remarks	699	701	2
§ 159	Renaissance Furniture	701	708	7
§ 160	Renaissance Timber Architecture	709	710	1

	Chapter	Pag-i	Pag-f	Pags
	Stereotomy
	Aesthetic-Formal	725	746	21
§ 161	Introduction	725	726	1
§ 162	The Hearth	726	727	1
§ 163	Stone Masonry	727	728	1
§ 164	1. Constructional Elements Considered in Themselves	728	734	6
§ 165	2. Relation of Parts to One Another and to the Whole: The Principle of their Bonding	734	738	4
§ 166	3. The Shape of the Substructure as a Whole	73		